Also,

2 little added extras if you are interested!

We have studied The International Space Station in class and it can be seen passing through the sky from Ireland tonight!

Thanks to our clear bright skies, it has been easy to spot over the last few evenings. It will appear as a bright light, moving quickly. Tonight, it is due to pass over between 8:40pm and 8:50pm. Even if you just catch a glimpse, it is very exciting to think that we are looking at that wonderful moving station, while the astronauts are busy working inside!

Another little fun thing to do at home –

Google the word tiger and the first page that appears should have an option to “View in 3D” at the bottom of it. If you click on this, the tiger will appear on your screen as if it in your own room! It will look around, have a shake and stand still while you take a photo with you beside it! Lots of fun for all ages! It works with other animals too so maybe play around with it and send some funny photos to your friends and family!

Watch out for April Fool Pranks tomorrow!

Hope you all have a wonderful Easter together,

Edel Lennon 😊
